Prolonged Marion-Bucyrus Line Fight Indicated at Hearing.

BEFORE COMMISSION

State Board Takes Matter Under Advisement After Arguments.

Whether the public utilities commission has authority to require the C., D. & M. Electric Co. to agree with Marion and Bucyrus on the matter of removing or sealing its tracks in these cities as a condition upon which to abandon its Marion-Bucyrus branch probably will go to the state supreme court for decision, an Associated Press dispatch from Columbus today indicated.

This probability was seen today following a hearing before the state utilities commission yesterday on the electric company's application for a rehearing on the commission's order requiring the traction company to arrange to remove or seal its tracks before it could abandon the line.

After hearing arguments of attorneys for the electric company and City Solicitors Carter M. Patton of Marion and Charles F. Schaber of Bucyrus, the commission took the application under advisement. It is expected to refuse or grant a rehearing within a few days.

Former Rulings Cited

In arguments in support of the company's application for rehearing, Attorney W. P. Moloney pointed out that the commission, in making the order, had reversed itself.

He cited the commission's previous orders in the Scioto Valley, and the Findlay, Fostoria & Arcadia abandonment cases in which the commission held that it did not have authority to compel those interurbans to remove or seal their tracks in Circleville, Chillicothe and Findlay.

Moloney also declared that the supreme court of Pennsylvania recently held that utilities commissions are without authority over interurban tracks within municipalities and cited the Ohio commission's order in the Scioto Valley abandonment case as good law on the subject.

He also argued that the commission, in making such a conditional order, was delegating its authority, if it has any, to the cities.

Argue for "Implied Authority"

Both City Solicitors Patton and Schaber argued that the commission has "implied" authority under the present law to make such a conditional order as a means of "right and fairness."

Patton contended that transportation conditions had changed markedly since the commission had ruled in the Scioto Valley and other cases, and that he believed the courts would lean toward a liberal construction of the law to meet the changed conditions.

Supporting this argument, he declared that city streets no longer are for local use alone, but are part of state and federal highway systems. Therefore, he continued, the condition of the streets affects the public generally as well as locally and the disposition of the tracks in Marion become a matter of general public interest and welfare.

Both Patton and Schaber denied that the commission was delegating its authority to municipalities. Both said they were willing to have the state supreme court pass upon the question.

Schaber voiced the opinion that he anticipated little or no difficulty in reaching an agreement with the company officials regarding the disposal of the tracks in Bucyrus, as a tentative plan for their disposition had virtually been agreed upon.

Bomb Wrecks Home of Sacco-Vanzetti Judge

Thayer Uninjured, but Wife and Maid Are Treated at Hospital; Blame for Blast Not Placed; Had Sent Men to Death.

By The Associated Press

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 27—The home of Judge Webster Thayer, who sentenced to death Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, internationally-known radicals, after they were convicted of murder, was wrecked by an explosion today. The police said the blast, which occurred just after 4 a. m., apparently was caused by a bomb.

Judge Thayer was uninjured but Mrs. Thayer was buried beneath wreckage and received a laceration of the forehead and suffered a severe shock. She and a maid, Miss Joan Ashe, suffering from shock, were taken to hospitals.

Pinned Under Debris

Deputy Chief Herbert W. Merrill after an investigation, said in his opinion the explosion was caused by a bomb.

Mrs. Thayer was pinned beneath the debris and was removed by policemen. The judge was found groping about his room by policemen.

The judge walked from his home unaided and remained on the grounds, to offer what aid he might to investigators. He was visibly shaken.

Virtually the entire city was roused by the blast which was heard for miles.

Neither the police nor Judge Thayer were ready to lay the blame at the door of any person or organization.

"I should hate to think," Judge Thayer said, "that because a man does his duty before mankind and God his penalty is this."

A little later, in a slightly more smiling manner, he commented: "They can't kill me that easily."

Judge Thayer's home has been under the watchfulness of the police many times since Aug. 22, 1927, when Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti went to the electric chair at Massachusetts state prison for the murder of a paymaster and a guard in South Braintree in April, 1920.

The judge, a noted jurist in Massachusetts, had sentenced Sacco and Vanzetti in April, 1927, after a long legal battle. A Norfolk county jury had previously found the men guilty in July, 1921, and nine separate motions were filed for a new trial. All were overruled.

Judge Thayer was threatened many times, and many demonstrations were held in the vicinity of his home. No resort was ever made to actual violence, however, and his home was guarded each May day as a routine assignment.

College Head's Home Guarded

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 27—Guards were thrown around the home of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard university today after word had been received of the explosion at the home of Judge Webster Thayer in Worcester.

President Lowell was one of the committee of three named by the then Gov. Alvan T. Fuller to hear witnesses and pass on the guilt or innocence of Sacco and Vanzetti. They found that the pair had been justly convicted.

Had Sole Access to Secret Vault, Witness in Cleveland Trial Says.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 27—Alex Bernstein, former chief deputy county treasurer charged with embezzlement of $177,272 in tax money, was pictured today by Felix O'Neil, chief cashier, as the "czar" of the treasury.

The witness said Alex Bernstein had sole access to a secret compartment in the treasury vault. It was from this secret compartment, according to State Examiner James N. Main, who uncovered treasury shortages, that Alex Bernstein produced $196,000 in cash, Dec. 17.

Hearing of testimony concerning operations of the treasury started today after the state and defense made their opening statements yesterday.

DEFENSE FIGHT FOR DAVIS UNDER WAY

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—Notified it must disprove contentions of the state, the defense in the fraternal lottery trial of Senator James J. Davis speeded up the presentation of its evidence today in an effort to give the case to the jury Friday.

Federal District Judge Frank J. Coleman yesterday warned the Pennsylvania legislator's attorneys they must break down the prosecution's case when he denied a motion for dismissal of the indictment.

Bettman-Bulkley Controversy Flames Anew Following Wet Question Debate.

DISORDER MARKS MEETING

Democrat Charges Opponent Used "Contemptible Innuendo" in Cincinnati.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Sept. 27—Personal controversy between Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland and Attorney General Gilbert Bettman of Cincinnati, rival candidates for a senate seat, aired first in their prohibition debate last night, broke out again today with Bulkley charging that his opponent descended to "contemptible innuendo" in an effort "to besmirch my record."

The charge was made in a letter to the attorney general, copies of which were given to the press.

The senator asserted that Bettman in previous addresses had said Bulkley had "run out" on a beer bill vote in the senate. He charged the attorney general with evading attempts to have him cite a specific instance of such an action.

"Your effort to besmirch my record is wholly unworthy," Bulkley wrote. "I think you know you are wrong and should apologize. Unless you do so, I demand a public answer to my written questions handed you during the debate, and the same honest attempt on your part to support your charge, which, I characterize as absolutely spurious."

The Democratic senator and his Republican opponent debated the prohibition program of their respective parties here last night. Bulkley defended the Democratic program of outright repeal of the Eighteenth amendment. Bettman contended repeal could best be achieved through a Republican program of repeal, with congressional regulation remaining to prevent return of the saloon.

They began their debate calmly, but ended in a rising storm of disorder as the rebuttals became increasingly personal.

It was a duel to no decision—officially, at least. For both nevertheless claimed victory.

GALION BANK GIVEN $30,000 ON BONDS

Suit Against Surety Company Settled in U. S. Court.

Special to The Star

GALION, O., Sept. 27—The two cases of A. E. Bressler, receiver for the Citizens' National bank of Galion against the Fidelity Surety Co. were settled yesterday when in the United States district court at Cleveland. The settlement was approved by the court.

The bank was put under the old national act, with a bond of J. E. Carey, president of the closed bank, who is now serving a term in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., on a charge of misapplying funds of the bank. The bond was given by the Fidelity Surety Co. of Baltimore, Md.

Cooking School To Use Newest Kitchen Ware

Activities have already started at The Star auditorium to turn it into a huge cooking school for the women of Marion and vicinity. The stage is to be converted into a modern kitchen where the newest in ranges, refrigerators and other culinary equipment will be set up. This kitchen will actually be used by Mrs. Ruth Campbell, the cooking expert, while she makes salads, cooks meat, beats up a new dessert and concocts the many other good things included in her schedule. Comfortable seats will be provided for every housekeeper in Marion and vicinity, and, while Mrs. Campbell urges that each of her "pupils" bring a pencil and notebook with her, the recipes of each session will be printed and distributed free to all.

Mrs. Campbell

"And do impress those readers of yours," Mrs. Campbell wrote The Star when planning the Marion school, "that this cooking school is new. New equipment, new recipes, new menus. There will be dishes to interest the most experienced cook in Marion and the vicinity and there will be new labor-saving ideas and tips to help the youngest bride over the first difficult months for her housekeeping.

"I have been especially careful to include ideas which will appeal to the women who have been used to having a cook and a diningroom maid and who now must do their own work. They will hear at the cooking school that the whole country has become their concern."

STOCK BURNS IN BARN FIRE

Four Farm Buildings Swept by Early Morning Blaze Near Waldo.

Special to The Star

WALDO, O., Sept. 27—A large barn, three other farm buildings, a strawstack, four head of stock, 300 chickens, a large number of farm implements and a quantity of grain were destroyed by fire at the Ben Weisel farm four miles east of here about 1:30 a. m. today. Origin of the fire is unknown.

The blaze was discovered by Mr. Weisel who was awakened by the barking of a dog. The garage, granary and chicken coop together with one mule, a cow and a calf, one hog, 300 bushels of corn, 300 bushels of wheat, 90 bushels of rye and 15 tons of clover hay were burned.

The Waldo fire department was called and with neighbors, succeeded in preventing the blaze from reaching the house and other buildings on the farm.

The loss is partially covered by insurance.

120-MILE WIND HITS ISLAND

Thirty Known Dead as Storm Rages in Vicinity of San Juan.

PROPERTY DAMAGE HIGH

Thousands Left Homeless as Flimsy Houses of Natives Are Demolished.

By The Associated Press

SAN JUAN, P. R., Sept. 27 — At least 30 persons are known to have been killed in a terrific hurricane which struck this city last night.

The full force of a 120-mile wind struck before midnight and lashed the city until 2:30 this morning, causing property damage even greater than that left in the wake of the disastrous 1928 blow.

Hundreds were injured and thousands were left homeless. Most of the dead, the first reports indicated, were in smaller outlying towns, such as Barrios, Sabinalians, Catano and Rio Piedras.

Here in the city the loss of lives was materially reduced by police who took the precaution of rounding up hundreds of women and children, removing them from their homes and placing them for safety in the more substantial church and school buildings.

The villages, consisting for the most part of flimsy homes, had no such protection. Even in San Juan homes by the hundred were unroofed and torrents of rain poured in.

First reports gave the following death toll:

Barrios, 14; Sabinalians 4; Catano 2; Rio Piedras, 10.

Various reports from the last named town placed the death toll there as high as 40, with seven members of one family killed in their home. Rio Piedras is about five miles east of San Juan, directly in the path of the storm. The unsubstantial native dwellings stood exposed on the hillsides.

Among the Americans living here there were no deaths or injuries, a preliminary check indicated. No American resident escaped without loss, however, due chiefly to heavy rains pouring into the unroofed houses.

Storm To Move North, Forecast

The disturbance, the bureau said, was "continuing to move slightly north of west at a speed of at least 12 miles an hour."

BANK AT WALDO PAYS DIVIDEND

Distribution of 30 Per Cent Started to 600 Depositors and Creditors Today.

Distribution of $25,000 in a 30 per cent dividend to depositors and general creditors of the Waldo Banking Co. was begun today by Don C. Lusk, agent in charge for the state banking department.

This dividend is the second paid by the agent since the Waldo bank closed Dec. 18, 1931, and increases the amounts paid on all claims to 60 per cent, Lusk said.

The 600 persons who will share in the dividend are urged by Mr. Lusk to present their certificates of proof of claim at the Marion Savings bank rooms where assets of the Waldo bank, the Commercial bank and the Marion Savings bank are now in the process of liquidation.

Checks to be distributed in this dividend are drawn on the Fahey Banking Co.

Liquidation of the assets of the Waldo bank is progressing rapidly and satisfactorily, Mr. Lusk said.

TELLS SOLONS THREE MILLION CUT IS NEEDED

Salary Reduction Program Outlined by Governor, Convening Legislature.

INESCAPABLE, HE SAYS

Also Asks for Legislation To Decrease Compensation of County Officials.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 27—Dwindling state revenues because of the business depression necessitates the cutting of salaries of state officials and employes approximately $3,000,000 for the next two years beginning Jan. 1, Governor George White today told the Ohio legislature, which he called into its third special session during his tenure.

Notwithstanding the fact that the 1932 budget has been cut 20 per cent plus $1,800,000, further reductions must be made for the next biennium, he declared, in order to balance with the state's revenue, which he estimated at $40,000,000 for that period.

Asking also for legislation to reduce salaries of county officials, the governor pointed out that these officials' salaries constitute only "a small portion of local expenditures and insisted that "economies large enough to effect tax rates in any marked degree must result from reductions in the sums which local officials expend, rather than from curtailment in the salaries of these officials themselves." His estimate of savings by cutting county officials' salaries is between $175,000 and $180,000 a year.

Action on Relief Asked

The governor's initial message also called for legislation providing for the distribution and administration of relief funds allotted to the state by the Federal Reconstruction finance corporation. This money is to be advanced to the state from its share of federal highway funds it would receive during the next five years. The state, in turn, distributes the money to the various counties on the basis of property taxes, they would receive during five years and will withhold from the counties one-fifth each year beginning in 1933 in repayment of the amounts so advanced from the federal funds.

Calling attention to the fact the legislature cooperated with him in the enactment of emergency relief legislation during the two previous special sessions, the governor made a plea for the same spirit of cooperation during the present session.

"You have met the emergencies which necessitated the previous special sessions in a spirit of statesmanlike devotion to the welfare of our people, which has reflected infinite credit upon your patriotism," the governor said. "In reliance upon this same spirit, I now ask your cooperation in considering the matters to be brought before you. With the eyes of the people upon us, I look forward with confidence to the outcome."

Must Share Burden, He Says

Urging the salary reductions, the governor said: "Many thousands of our people are unemployed; those fortunate enough to secure or retain employment have been compelled to accept salary and wage reductions under the duress of depressed economic conditions. The compensation of public servants must come from taxes and it is very proper, therefore, that those on public payrolls should bear their proportionate share of the burden.

GRAIN VALUES TURN LOWER

Scattered Selling Finds Pit Without Aggressive Support; Corn Hits Low.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 27—Downturns in grain values took place early today as a result of scattered selling which found the market without aggressive support. Corn touched a new bottom price record for the season, opening ⅝@⅞ off and later held near the initial limits.

Bears in the grain pits emphasized the setbacks of securities and of cotton that preceded weakness of cereals. Adverse action of sterling exchange was also an unsettling influence. Besides, wet weather conditions over domestic winter wheat territory were construed as likewise against the buying side of wheat.

A gradual decline of about 1 cent a bushel in the value of wheat ensued, with lack of purchases rather than any material selling pressure the outstanding characteristic. The fact that Winnipeg October wheat contracts were hovering near to the 80 cent level and at a new bottom record for the season acted as a weight on the market here. Arrivals of wheat reported by Winnipeg today, 2,315 cars, showed a falling off compared with a week ago but still greatly exceeded last year's figures. Selling for cash interests in the corn pit put corn and oats on the downgrade.

Provisions went lower with hog values and cereals.

"In the matter of the railway wage discussion now going on the President last week expressed the view both to the representatives of railway labor and to the leading railway presidents who have conferred with him that he feels that it is desirable that this question should be deferred at the present time

FARM GROUPS PLAN FIGHT TO CUT TAXES

Grange and Farm Bureau Complete Permanent Organization for Purpose.

The completion of a permanent organization to represent the grange and farm bureau of the county in their fight to reduce taxes was made last night at a meeting of legislative agents of both bodies.

LaRoy Anderson of LaRue was chosen as permanent chairman and Raymond Click of Prospect, vice chairman and secretary. A committee consisting of W. T. Owen, Paul D. Smith and L. V. Hite was named to investigate and plan procedure.

The organization will meet the last Monday night of each month in the Chamber of Commerce rooms and an invitation has been extended to any persons interested in the same projects, to attend the meetings. Publicity will be given of all findings and investigations both through newspapers and the legislative agents of the two farm organizations penses, the governor said: "From the point of view of the taxpayers, state expenditures are of relatively minor importance. By far the greater portion of tax money goes to the support of the local sub-divisions of government. Reductions in the tax burden, therefore, must chiefly be effected by reductions in the expenditures of the local bodies. These expenditures, for the most part, are controllable only by city councils, county commissioners and other local legislative authorities.

Other Messages Coming

While restricting his message to salary reductions and enabling legislation to handle advances from the federal Reconstruction Finance corporation, the governor said he would ask for other relief legislation in subsequent messages from time to time. Many subjects which he has been importuned to ask for legislation on at the special session, the governor said, will have to wait until the next regular session next January, either because they are not of emergency character or are so complicated that additional investigation must be made before proper laws can be enacted.

The chief executive read his message to the special meeting after the roll call at 1:30 p. m.

DE VALERA, President of the Irish Free State, presiding over the league of nations general assembly, says strange things. Instead of calling the league perfect, he said it stood under suspicion, "a defendant at the bar of public opinion." He also demanded that the league deal with all alike, weak little nations, or powerful big nations.

De Valera takes the league too seriously if he thinks it will talk to Japan or Italy as it talks to Austria and other countries hamstrung by the treaty of Versailles.

RIVALS FOR SENATE SEAT BATTLE AGAIN

Bettman-Bulkley Controversy Flames Anew Following Wet Question Debate.

thelem, there were cheers from adherents, jeers from dissidents, and increasing heckling as the debaters became more heated in their accusations

Bulkley is campaigning on the Democratic plank of outright repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, Bettman on the Republican platform he described as "for repeal of the Eighteenth amendment with a grant of power to regulate the liquor traffic in the wet states so as to bar the return of the saloon"

Bettman called the Democratic platform a "catch-phrase" in its call for "outright repeal," and contended it could not obtain approval in congress and in conventions in the states; and declared it fit only to lead the nation "into the chaos of nullification." Bulkley contended that he found in the Republican platform "no sincere purpose to accomplish any specific things."

"If it is a repeal declaration," he said, "Vice President Curtis has either been imposed upon or else he is attempting to defraud the drys into voting for repeal If it is a repeal declaration President Hoover has defrauded Dr Poling, whose support he accepts with Dr Poling's avowed understanding that President Hoover is 'decisively a dry' . . ."

But Bettman saw no inconsistency there .

"Naked repeal,' 'outright repeal'," he said, "are catch phrases that in this emotional period have caught the ear of the man on the street. . . . The circumstance that the true liberal and the true temperance man can agree upon the Republican position does not make that position a straddle."

Gandhi celebrated his sixty-third birthday today with a private concert in his prison cell. The doctor was delighted when he propped himself up on his cot and asked that an Indian musician be sent in. One of them came and sang Indian songs to his own accompaniment on the sitar, a native instrument something like a mandolin.

REV. WOOD TALKS AT Y'S MEN'S MEETING

Minister Gives Views on Prohibition and Preparedness Before Group.

Views on preparedness for war and prohibition were given by Rev. Lawrence A. Wood, pastor of the Trinity Baptist church, in an address to members of the Y's Men's club in the City club last night.

A group of rich persons who hope to add to their wealth through the operation of breweries are responsible for the anti-prohibition agitation, he declared. The drinking of today, he said, goes on behind closed doors and is only a small fraction of the drinking done in the pre-prohibition days.

Pointing to the militia and the army as the only means of defending the lives and property of citizens against local uprisings as well as invasions, Rev. Wood said that it is dangerous for any one to instill in the youth of America the idea that they should not go to war under any circumstances. Although war is deplorable, patriotism and a preparedness against the dangers of today are necessary he said.

Jewish New Year Will Be Celebrated Here Saturday

The celebration of the Jewish New Year, or Rosh Hashanah, on Saturday of this week and of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, on Oct. 10, will be marked by the closing of Jewish stores in Marion.

The New Year celebration will begin Friday night at 5 and be resumed Saturday at 10 a. m. The stores will be closed Saturday until 5:30 p. m.

William Rosenberg, student at the Hebrew Union school in Cincinnati, will speak at all the services, which will be held in the worship quarters in the Marion National Bank building.

On New Year's eve, Mr Rosenberg will speak on "Religion's Function Throughout the Year," and on New Year's day his subject will be "May You Strive for a Good Year."

The New Year is the beginning of the most sacred of the Jewish holiday seasons. It is the first of the Ten Days of Penitence, culminating in the Day of Atonement, the holiest and most sacred day in the Jewish calendar.

Rosh Hashanah is the traditional day for the exchange of greetings and good wishes and for the pardoning of grievances between individuals.

Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, is observed by the Jews throughout the world. This is the greatest fast of the Jewish year. Yom Kippur is distinctive among Jewish holidays, for it is not associated with nature or with history. It is a day for the searching of the heart to find peace with God.

Sunday night, Oct. 9, the Jewish service in Marion will begin at 5, with Mr. Rosenberg speaking on "Death—How To Regard It."

Services Monday, Oct. 10, will be at 10 a. m. and 5 p. m., with a memorial service for the dead at 4 p. m. Mr. Rosenberg will speak on "The Individual's Relation to Forgiveness." The stores will be closed all day Monday.

Mrs. Griselda Davis Dumbaugh will be in charge of music for the services.

Head Men.

Back in 1916 a Republican candidate for President of the United States inadvertently slipped up on a fine old political custom. Traveling in strange territory infested by unfriendly natives, he neglected to get in touch with the head man. Denied his customary tribute that worthy individual slipped his longest and sharpest knife into the stranger's back and hung the victim on a tree for all to see and profit by.

Thus it was that a Democratic candidate for President of the United States knew exactly what to do when he was whisked into the land of sunshine, super-athletes and the moving picture industry a few days ago. So elaborate were the precautions taken against repetition of the tragedy of 1916 that Mr. Roosevelt even had his manager along—or did the manager invite himself?

At any rate, nothing was overlooked. Not wishing to trim the ceremony to minimum requirements by giving the head man a few beads and a mirror, the Democratic traveler loaded him to the shoulders with that peculiar substance known as bologny—bologna, to be particular. The result was that the natives were well pleased. Head Man Johnson, needless to say, was ecstatic. The genial stranger can have the state, or whatever part of it is the senator's to give away.

Praise is sweet and unaccustomed to his ears, which often ache from abusive bombardments. A real Progressive works alone. His successes are failures in the eyes of other men. He is part of a militant minority which has to invite trouble to keep itself from being submerged. His is a hard lot. Little wonder that it goes ill with any one who makes it harder by failing to observe ordinary decencies of etiquet.

Franklin D. Roosevelt is 24 "right" as precaution can make him in the great state of California. He has Head Man Johnson, maverick and decidedly nonfinal Republican, cheering for him, a boost that has been available for a decade and a half to the first presidential candidate with sense enough to use the "kind words" approach.

Pinchot Comes to Heel.

Pennsylvania's able and fiery Governor Pinchot probably is incapable of eating humble pie. Still, there is no glory for him in the $2,500,000 loan granted his state by the Reconstruction Finance Corp.

Before President Hoover had signed the bill making $300,000,000 available to the states for direct relief, the governor had his front feet in the trough. He demanded Pennsylvania's "full" share of $68,000,000, with an immediate advance of $10,000,000.

His exorbitant request was refused, of course. From every part of the nation came protests against such unreasonableness. It seemed unthinkable then, as it does now, that the governor of a great state could be so childishly petty. Rightly or wrongly, the conclusion was drawn that Mr. Pinchot's disagreements with President Hoover had gagged his discretion.

There followed a trying period during which the Pennsylvania legislature toyed with the idea of getting something for nothing by refusing to appropriate state funds for relief. For weeks it fiddled and fumed in harmony with the bristling executive in Harrisburg, who was giving one of the year's prize exhibitions of bad spirit. Finally, it appropriated $21,000,000, whereupon its application for relief was sent to the Reconstruction Finance Corp. again.

But there was one more humiliation in store for Mr. Pinchot. Having refused to abide by the spirit of the legislation which made the money available, he failed to observe the rules. After another period of difficulty and bitterness, negotiations were completed and $2,000,000 dribbled from the treasury into Pennsylvania.

A governor is only human. So are the patient men who are managing the important affairs of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. Ignoring whatever legal principles may have been involved, most Americans derive from the circumstances of Pennsylvania's loan the warm satisfaction provided by the sight of an obstreperous individual brought to heel.

Can It Be True?

It is scarcely credible that a situation favorable to solution of the problems of eastern railroads has come into being. After waiting so long, waiting forever would have been no surprise.

For all that can be seen, however, obstacles to agreement among railroads and between the railroads and the interstate commerce commission no longer exist. Eastern trunk lines have reached an accord on modifications of a plan that was agreeable to them in its original form. The commission's approval of the plan hinged on modifications now understood to have been made. When the railroads sent it back in revised form for approval there would seem to be nothing left to do but celebrate completion of a torturous journey.

It has been made at a snail's pace, with scant regard for time. A dozen years ago the interstate commerce commission received instructions to formulate a plan. A year later it had one ready and started to hold hearings. Those lasted for several years.

They produced nothing but discouraged commissioners. Those gentlemen, convinced that they were attempting the impossible, asked to be relieved from their assignment in 1929, a request which was refused by congress. So the commission toiled on.

Four years later it had another plan, the famous five-system scheme. Railroads would have nothing to do with it. They replied, with President Hoover speaking for them, that they had reached a tentative agreement on a four-system plan. That plan, accepted by the interstate commerce commission, with reservations which now have been met, seems about to become effective. Instinctively, the public wonders what will happen to disappoint it this time. It has been fooled too many times.

Codifying Common Sense.

French athletes returning from the recent Olympic games commented with significant frequency, when interviewed by representatives of the French press, on the orderliness of life in America. The visitors were impressed with the smoothness characteristic of traffic movement in this land which many of them no doubt had imagined was turned upside down constantly by wild Indians and gun fighters. To one who has given his life to the mercy and skill of a Paris taxicab operator the amazement of a Frenchman over the orderly and safe operation of hundreds of thousands of automobiles in the United States is readily understandable.

There has been circulated widely within the last few days a bulky pamphlet compiled by the federal commerce department and intended to familiarize all who are interested concerning the proposed uniform vehicle code. Little more than the size of the document is required to convince the reader that any Frenchman favorably impressed with the way American traffic was handled in 1932 will owe it to himself to come back when the entire nation operates its automobiles under identical rules.

In sound reason it must be admitted that the Frenchman might then be a very old Frenchman, with slight interest in new approaches to perfection. The uniform vehicle code represents an ideal even though an ideal that has found a place in the program of the President of the United States and the federal department to which he bequeathed distinct identity and increasing power. In the obvious completeness of its length it represents nothing less than the codification of common sense as applied to the automobile age. In a spirit of fair criticism, most Americans will point out that its weakness is its perfection. It is too good to be true, skeptics, and they are a growing minority, will be persuaded to believe in it only with trying difficulty.

If adopted by all states, the code would go as far as legislation can go toward eliminating confusion in traffic rules, which then would be universal rather than localized. Highways would be made safe by elimination of incompetent drivers through licensing tests. Identical systems of vehicle registration would make it easier to trace cars and, consequently, more difficult for the flourishing branch of thievery known as car-stealing. In short, the code would do everything for which sane motorists have wished and eliminate everything they have cursed, with two exceptions. They are recklessness and stupidity. On them it would place a high premium.

Ohio is one of the states which has taken no action toward uniformity, as provided in the code's various sections. It is one of a minority group of 13 states which have taken no part in what is being pressed as a national program for the better protection of a public forced to admit by statistics on accidents and loss that it is, as yet, poorly adjusted to the automobile age. Does this state believe there are possibilities for progress in the idealism of the motor vehicle code, or are 35 other states wrong?

Water for Chicago.

The so-called Chicago water steal has come to be a familiar specter in the background of affairs in states adjacent to the great lakes. So familiar has it become, in fact that it scarcely attracts attention any longer outside legal circles directly concerned with it.

Attorney General Bettman's action calling a conference of legal heads in interested states is a reminder that the specter is still very much alive and ready for business. What was thought to be a successful attempt of the United States supreme court to get it out of the way seems to have turned out to be a threat which Chicago does not choose to heed.

Mr. Bettman charges that Chicago has failed to comply with the court's order and also has failed to make satisfactory progress toward construction of sewage disposal plants. The court's decree, issued in April 1930, enjoined diversion of water from Lake Michigan after July 1, 1930, in excess of 6,500 cubic feet and so on until 1933, when diversion would be reduced to 1,500 cubic feet. This amount is for sewage purposes, water pumped for domestic purposes is expected to add 1,900 cubic feet in 1933. Quantities are based on diversion per second.

The case is vastly complicated by the St. Lawrence seaway project, which is in direct conflict with Chicago's plan for an Illinois waterway connecting the Windy City with the Mississippi. It has two axes to grind, in addition to that one held by the huge Chicago sanitary district. After learning of the terms of the St. Lawrence treaty Senator Lewis of Illinois declared that objections to it would be so great that "the grandchildren of this generation will never see the canal built."

Chicago's arguments supporting its right to withdraw as much water as it needs are based, contrary to appearances, on more than defiance of constituted authority. They deny that the fall in lake levels is due wholly to diversion through the Chicago drainage canal. They claim vested rights—all the factors that go to make up the ball of red tape in cases of such a nature. One suspects that Senator Lewis is not far wrong in his prediction. Grandchildren of this generation probably still will be fretting about the so-called water steal and deploring the fact that inability to settle it held up the St. Lawrence seaway. If Chicago wants to keep up the fight that long, it's hard to see who will stop it.

Daily Guide to Health

Many Things Cause Loss of Hair.

Loss of hair is one of the most common of human experiences. A great deal has been written about this trouble. Much of it must be taken with a grain of salt.

Some authorities believe baldness is due to an impairment of the cells of the hair. Others claim that it is caused by a disease or abnormality of the scalp.

Throughout life there is always more or less loss of hair, but few have occasion to worry about this because constant replacements are made in most cases.

There are cases in which the exact cause of loss of hair can not be determined, but generally it can be definitely attributed to some disturbance of health.

"Congenital alopecia" is a condition in which a child is born without hair. The cause of this condition is not known, but it is believed to be hereditary, for it certainly appears to run in families. These children grow to maturity without hair and are bald-headed throughout life.

"Alopecia areata," or loss of hair in patches, has been known for many centuries, and was first described by Celsus, a Greek physician, in the year 58 B. C. Little has been contributed since that time toward the understanding or treatment of this disorder, in which there are patches varying in size and shape that contain no hair whatever. Often there is a regrowth of hair in these patches, but the hairs that come in are usually white. No doubt many of my readers have observed this condition. It is not limited to the scalp, but may occur in the beard of the eyebrows.

Infection is the most common cause of loss of hair and usually it is caused by a parasite. It may be associated with ringworm. It is almost exclusively a disease of childhood.

"Tinea capitis" is the technical term used for infections of the hairs of the scalp. The modern treatment of tinea capitis is removal of all the hair by carefully measured X-ray treatment. When proper precautions are taken there is no reinfection, the new hairs that grow will be free from infection.

Another disease caused by a germ, which is seen in adult life as well as in childhood, is called "tinea favus." In this, a yellow crust forms on the scalp and there is marked loss of hair. This disease has favorably responded to modern forms of treatment.

Of "seborrhoea" the familiar trouble universally called "dandruff," the cause is not definitely known. It is common in adults, and unless properly treated leads to loss of hair. Unfortunately, most persons neglect dandruff. Poor manner of living, unhygienic care of the scalp and carelessness in the use of hairbrushes and combs are a few of the many factors responsible for dandruff. Keep your brush and comb clean, and do not permit others to use them.

There are various forms of alopecia, or loss of hair, which is usually a symptom of some local disease of the scalp. It may occur after diseases that are accompanied by fever, such as influenza, typhoid and pneumonia.

As we grow older our hair naturally becomes thin. Baldness occurs in both men and women, but is more pronounced in men. Some become bald at an early age, others, never. If you have any disorder of the scalp, consult with your physician. Proper and immediate care of the scalp is an important step in preserving your hair.—Copyright 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Sept. 27—On one of those hectic days during the last session of congress when the cry of "Balance the budget!" was on every tongue, a man of medium height, with thinning gray hair and clear blue eyes advanced into the well of the house.

Champ Clark as seen on the floor and persons in the packed galleries listened in silence.

He began to speak rapidly because of his intense interest in what he was saying. Three 400 or

"I have burned every bridge behind me," he said. "...No matter what the personal consequences may be to me, I am going to advocate the levying of sufficient taxes to balance the budget. ... It means nothing to the United States whether I remain in congress.... It means much to the United States government that its honors, its credit, and its security be maintained at par ..."

That might well have been the valedictory speech of Charlie Crisp of Georgia, for 20 years a member of the house. He leaves "the hill" after March 4, defeated in an attempt to win a seat in the senate.

Crisp made that declaration in his capacity as acting chairman of the ways and means committee. What he often said was the biggest burden of his career fell on his shoulders early in the session when Collier of Mississippi chairman of this committee, collapsed from overwork.

That turn of fate may have been the thing which helped retire Charlie Crisp to private life.

As acting chairman it fell to him to provide the leadership for whipping into shape the big new revenue bill for boosting the federal income. It was perhaps the most difficult problem any committee of congress ever has had to deal with.

Of course, as the ranking member of the committee he would have borne much of the responsibility anyway, but the fact that he was the chairman and out in front all of the time made him a special object of attacks.

His acts as chairman came under fire in the Georgia campaign. Advocacy of the sales tax, placing the tax on electric power on the consumer rather than the producer were charged to him, and he was painted as one who favored the special interests.

Crisp's departure removes one of the best known members of congress. Now 61, when he first sat in the house he was 26.

Daily Talk to Parents

BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

A PAINLESS FAREWELL.

The morning that Marcia was leaving to spend some weeks with her aunt in the country she looked up suddenly from her cereal and asked: "Mother, why was the little girl in the story you read me last night sad when she said goodbye?"

"I think she was sorry that she wouldn't be seeing her friends for a long time," mother answered, and drew the talk into other channels.

As soon as Marcia had finished eating she came to her mother, put her arms about her neck, climbed upon her lap and kissed her several times. Such demonstrativeness was unusual and showed a great deal of pent-up emotion.

There still was a quarter of an hour before auntie called for her and mother suddenly found that Marcia's nails needed manicuring badly. They were just finished when the door bell rang. There was talk about baggage and a few parting injunctions. Then "Goodbye, dear," said mother. "Write me nice long letters. Have a good time!" and with a brief kiss she saw Marcia to the door.

That was a painless farewell. The emotional scene that might have developed was side-tracked. There were no unnecessary remarks about how much mother would miss her little girl and so on. Good-bye was said quickly and cheerfully.

It is unfair to send children away with a display of sorrow at parting. When parents indulge in long drawn emotional farewells the child is sure to be much disturbed and it will be harder than it need be for him to adjust himself to the separation and to make the most of the new experience that lies before him.

FOUNDING OF OLD RAVENNA.

Benjamin Tappan, the founder of Ravenna, O., in 1809, was the same Tappan who was a United States senator 40 years later. Though when elected and through all the period of his active life he was a resident of Steubenville.

When quite a youngster Tappan's father sent him from Massachusetts to take charge of a large tract of land he had purchased in what is now Portage county. There was just one other white family living on the tract at the time.

In 1809 he laid out the town of Ravenna, naming it after the Italian city for no other reason that it sounded good to him. He soon had a few families living there and then Tappan offered a prize of one town lot to the first family having a baby there. The prize was won by David Thompson and wife the next year.

Not wishing to show partiality to either end of human life, the proprietor then donated ground for a city burial ground and cemetery in that fell the same year to Nathan Chapman, who died at the age of 51.

Europe Day by Day

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

Paris, Sept. 27—Paris is a bit droopy. The vaunted sparkle lacks lustre. A changed tempo is apparent in stepping from Gare St. Lazarre into the usual noisy milieu. Many of the corrugated shutter go-downs in front of shops are down permanently, black splotches in the glitter.

Thus does La Belle France and her jetty fossettes for the moment, suggest a toothless, worn-out frump. Yet, with all, it is Paree! Paree! and for most boys from the creek crotches there is no other European city comparable. I scribble in morning pajamed ease on an awninged portico.

Below, under gay topped umbrellas of a tea garden with a rosarium allt in pebbled paths, noon-day crowds chatter blithely of inconsequentials—the ever present symbol, France knows its leisure. Too much leisure I fear, is its besetting sin. It is cut to a pattern for the E. Berry Walls of life.

In a circle of the spacious Place Vendome I met a number of Americans—Jerome Beatty and wife, the Watterson Rothackers and Mrs. Samuel Rothapfel and daughter. Hotels are not doing so well. Prices have been shaved. "For rent" signs hang over the luxurious hotels of rue de la Paix.

A pronounced back-wash of a world in turmoil is eddied among the sidewalk tables of the Cafe de la Paix. At busiest periods they are only one-third filled. The army of waiters has become a mere corporal's guard. Jha Metzger, ex Brooklyn newsboy, chirped "Battery Park at dawn."

There always is a chuckle at French customs in the local press. Figaro today first pages the divorce of a Parisian wife who learned her husband, before marrying her, abandoned his mistress. The judge granted the decree in five minutes.

My espionage forces are derelict in reporting the ravages silver-topped Harry Silvey has made along the rues. Any hour I expect news that he has the avenues, the boulevards and even the faubourgs in cinders.

A bewilderingly lovely lady with honey brown eyes is a hotel neighbor. She has the glacial glamor of the born aristocrat. Yet a faulty trans-Atlantic phone connection, in the middle of the night, kept us awake and bared a family skeleton. She had to yell to be heard and I began to fear for the peace of Napoleon, in his royal crypt a few kilometers away. "You catch the next boat," she screamed, "and get that red headed hussy out of our apartment at once."

But I'd like to pitch a contrasting picture of domestic serenity under the sturdy porticoes of rue de Rivoli, my venerable friend, Monsieur Malabier, his wife and maiden sister conduct a box-like glove shop. Their contentment in the heart of the Parisian uproar, has interested me for years. He is a book figure come to life, the French Papa of the novels. Late last evening, walking the dog, I peered into the cozy, red-carpeted sitting room in the rear of the darkened boutique. Mama Malabier was reading in the twitching glow of a kerosene lamp. Papa, cat on his lap, was nodding, while sister-in-law industriously knitted. A minute later around the corner in rue de Castiglione a vulture of the night swooped from the shadows and threw open his coat for a furtive peep at a fan like spread of filthy post-cards. Such are the sharp Parisian contrasts.

At Foquets on Champs Elysees, I was introduced to the French way of serving pineapples. The fruit, Vesuvius like, in a mountain of ice, is peeled at the table, sliced expertly with a razor-edged knife, powdered with sugar and sprinkled with kirsch. The ritual at your plate gives an exquisite savour. I felt need of an oilcloth bib.

In Guy de Maupassant's favorite two block strip, that most impressive street in Paris—exceptingwide rue Royale—Maxim's, with its cherry red front, struggles formlessly. Only two customers occupied the terrasse last night. But Phillipe, the pock marked little chasseur, still is about. From time for inglorious chores for many Americans, in Maxim's opulent past, he has a fortune in gold bars.

As gray dawn suffused its morning pink, I watched that ancient cavalcade of market wagons clump clump, clumping toward Les Halles, tired drivers in a coil of sleep on top. On a nearby balcony was another watcher. As I stepped through the French windows he hallooed "Some groceries, fella!"

... said Nan. 'I told ... agined

"Oh, yes—I forgot—Nan saw him' The case is complete' She looked out of her window in the middle of the night, and saw him by a flash of lightning' He must have been the best part of a couple of hundred yards away—but what is that to the eye of faith" We couldn't have an accident without Leonard, so somebody's bound to have seen him hanging round'

"Come on, F F' It's going to be a job to saddle him with the wheel coming off my car, but I suppose you're going to try."

He tilted his black head and looked at them both. His frown was gone. His look had a surface brilliance of amusement, but under it Nan, at least, was aware of something fiercely challenging

She thought, "He hates me I can't help him"

And then Ferdinand was speaking

"Well" he said, 'if Robert wanted to tamper with your car, you made it easy for him'

"Attaboy'" murmured Jervis

"Well, didn't you" After you'd put us down at the front door you ran way back into the shade I located the place after I'd cleaned up Your oil had dripped some There you were' half way down to the garage with that left front wheel in a lot of bushes

"And where was Robert till about the middle of lunch" Messing about with his car in the garage, wasn't he' And what was to prevent him stopping into the bushes on his way up to the house and operating on that wheel of yours with a wrench? He was going to be late for lunch anyhow, so he wouldn't be in a hurry As a matter of fact he wasn't in a hurry'

"Go on F F, you're doing it awfully well"

"I am going on I'm going to tell you how I know he wasn't in a hurry I stepped down to the garage and I had a look at his car There were a couple of chauffeurs there, and we got chatty—conversation flowed I wanted to find out just how much time Robert had really wasted over his old wreck. He didn't waste so very much. He left that garage at one-fifteen precisely The second chauffeur happened to notice the time, because he'd got a date with a girl—at least that's what I gathered from the way he looked when the other one chaffed him about being so sure of the time So you see Robert didn't hurry

Well played" said Jervis 'That's a very good effort, but I'm afraid it's not quite good enough. If Leonard had been up to any monkey business with the wheel, the last thing he'd do would be to ask for a lift in a car that might go to glory at any moment"

"Say first instead of last, and I'm with you

Jervis gave a short laugh.

'So he's suicidal as well as homicidal'

Ferdinand sat back in his chair "We've got to take some risks in this world" he replied Isn't it obvious he'd have left the wheel so that it would have run you well away from the Tetterleys' And if he'd been in such a hurry as he said to reach those incubators would he have stood mopping his face and watching us out of sight when we put him down'"

"Humph' And F F can you give one single reason why Leonard should want to kill me'"

Ferdinand glanced quickly at Nan but she was looking down into her lap Jervis went on

'It's not up to me to unravel your mystery But I might say that if I had been killed this afternoon Leonard would not have profited one cent"

Who would'' asked Ferdinand 'You if you'd been a survivor Are you carrying a wrench today? Because you're down for $10,000 in my will and there's about as much evidence against you as against Leonard You were present the day I almost drowned you knew the chemist you were in New York when the taxi ran me down—"

Francis laughed, and held up his hand

"Is there anybody who might inherit your property whom you couldn't cut out of your will'"

"Rosamund Carew"

"And whom is Leonard with almost constantly the last few weeks'"

"Rosamund but—"

F F shrugged

"There you are Jervis."

Nettie Tetley of Hunting Hatfield Henderson on the Trail and Her Conclusion That Someone "Around These Parts" Needed Looking After.

NOBODY spoke for an instant after "Nettie" had given us her startling information concerning the horse and rider one heard upon the mountain-side, adding the comment that the "horse was the tightest stepper, just as though he had slippers on."

Harry Underwood broke the perplexed silence first.

"Muffled hoofs, by all that's holy!" he murmured.

"That is the explanation, no doubt," my father said, and Phillip Veritson added a characteristic comment.

"If that were a situation in a play, it would be laughed at as unreal," he said, and I realized again that never did the greatest dramatic producer of his time look at anything of life without appraisement of its dramatic value.

Hugh's voice, incisive even its low murmur, addressed "Nettie" directly

What Nettie Saw

"You say the horseman was coming down the mountain path toward you Did he continue down to the point where you left this trail" Is he on his way up here now, or did he turn off?"

"I was just fixing to tell you that," Nettie said with acerbity, and I smiled in the darkness at the disconcerted irritation which I guessed Hugh was feeling But I surmised also, with a little feeling of malicious glee that all men looked alike to "Nettie" She cared nothing for their dignity or their wishes When she was ready to tell her story she would speak, and not before And she would tell it in her own way

"That horse stepped so light," "Nettie" went on after an interval, "that he was almost on top of me before I knew it. I was afraid the man on him would hear me getting out of the way but luck was with me There wasn't much underbrush there and I didn't make any noise getting off the path Then, just as soon as he'd gone by, I started down after him, as soft-like as I could go

"I thought somebody ought to track him and see what he was up to" she went on "I know, from what 'Mis' Barnes told me, that anybody around these parts tonight that didn't belong to you folks needed looking after, so I kept right after him."

Orders from Grandstand

She paused, evidently with an intuitive sense of the dramatic suspense she was creating and I knew that more hands than mine were itching to shake her complacent self into action But the Netties of this world have all the cards in their hands, where men are concerned There is only one effective weapon against them, and that is the one that Harry Underwood describes as "beating a wife up every Saturday night, whether she needs it or not" Otherwise there is nothing to do save humor them, and no one of Nettie's auditors spoke when she paused, but simply waited patiently for her to resume her story

"He got almost down to this road," she finally went on, "and I thought sure he was going to come right up this trail after you. I didn't know what to do for a second or two then I thought, as he was going pretty slow, I could cut in front of him and run up here and tell you about him, before he had a chance to get up here"

My respect for "Nettie" rose decidedly She is not a young woman, and to beat even a slowly traveling horse up the trail meant an effort that no woman of her age should be called upon to make.

"But as it turned out, I didn't have to," she went on, with a slow deliberation of speech that was maddening Just before he struck this road, there's a fork that leads the other side of a little lake a piece beyond here, and he turned up that way Then I beat it down here"

"The other side of a little lake" I repeated the words to myself with quickly mounting excitement. That must mean the bit of water that Marion had described in the code letter she sent to her mother That the dates thought had struck the others I knew when Hugh spoke quickly, tactlessly.

"Thank you so much," he told Nettie. "You have helped us a great deal, Wyman!"

"We'll just have to leave Kristen where he is. He'll have to take his chances. You take this lady and her husband back and have her show you where that trail forked. Then send them home, and you find out where that horse with the muffled feet went."

VITAMIN B IN BRAN, RESEARCH REVEALS

Also Has "Bulk" to Further Assist Elimination, and Iron for Blood

One of the functions of Vitamin B is to help tone the intestinal tract, and promote elimination. Now, laboratory experiments show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains this valuable vitamin.

In addition, ALL-BRAN brings a plentiful supply of "bulk"—which provides the "ballast" needed to exercise the intestines.

This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is similar to that of lettuce. Inside the body, it is different from the way you see it in the package. It absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer, milder, more palatable.

Another healthful element brought by ALL-BRAN is iron. Tests show this cereal has twice as much usable iron as the same weight of beef liver

Check common constipation—with its frequent headaches, loss of appetite and energy—by eating this delicious cereal. How much pleasanter than taking pills and drugs—so often habit-forming.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Appetizing recipes on the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Cubs and Yanks To Take Last Workout Before Series

NEW YORK FAVORED IN EARLY BETTING; ODDS STAND 8 TO 5

No Attendance Records Expected To Be Broken as Result of Ball Classic.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—The big city pulsated with world series fever today as the Chicago Cubs and the New York Yankees prepared to fight it out in baseball's greatest spectacle at the Yankee stadium.

Tomorrow they go at it. Two games here, then three at Chicago, then back here for two more if the series goes the limit. A short fight and a sweet one, but today it still was something to anticipate, something to argue over, with every office and street corner an open forum.

The Cubs, arriving this morning, were to be given full possession of the field, for a last-minute brushing up on fielding and a sharpening up of batting eyes. The Yankees, too, were to snap through just enough work to retain a keen edge for the big series.

Meanwhile the greatest activity was miles removed from the battle site.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, from a central location, smoothed out the thousand and one details, gave managers and umpires final instructions. And in the back rooms it went like this:

"Yeah, they're offering 8 to 5 on those Yanks, but it don't mean a thing. Not a thing. Didn't they lay the same figures that the Athletics would take the Cardinals a year ago and didn't this Pepper Martin make them all look silly?"

That was how matters stood: The approximate odds 5 to 8 in favor of the slugging Yankees, the prospects that there will be showers tomorrow and Thursday, and the majority of fans frankly skeptical of the dope that has established the American league champions top-heavy favorites.

About the only point which all agreed was that the big series is not likely to break any attendance records. There has been a healthy, normal sale and there probably will be around 50,000 customers in Colonel Jacob Ruppert's big ball yard when play starts at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow, but the record of 68,000 set in 1926 probably will not be endangered.

32 WOMEN BATTLE FOR NATIONAL TITLE

Helen Hicks, Last Year's Golf Champ, Forced Out in Qualifier.

By The Associated Press

PEABODY, Mass., Sept. 27—With the defending champion retired to the gallery, the 32 qualifiers in the women's national golf championship were primed today for the opening 18-hole matches on the Salem country club's course.

Helen Hicks, 1931 titlist, passed out of the tourney yesterday when she carded an 80 for her qualifying test.

As she frubbed away her chances, most of her more seasoned top-notch rivals survived the competition against par.

Maureen Orcutt and Virginia Van Wie, added to their game's history by tying for the medal with par 79's.

Miss Orcutt and Miss Van Wie engaged in a sudden-death playoff to facilitate the making of the tournament draw for the match play and the former won on the third extra hole, forcing Miss Van Wie into the lower half of the draw, which contains Enid Wilson, the British champion, and the most feared player in the tournament.

Miss Orcutt drew Frances Snyder of Rye, N. Y., as her first match opponent, and Miss Van Wie was paired with Mrs. B. P. Meckley of Silver Springs, Md.

BEARS AND MILLERS OPEN SERIES TODAY

20,000 Fans Expected To Witness Game for Little World Title.

By The Associated Press

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 27 — Eyes of the minor league baseball world turned to this red-hot baseball city today to watch the opening engagement of the little world series between the champions of the International league and the American association.

Today's battle between the Bears and the Minneapolis Millers marks the first time in its history the classic of the "Double A" leagues was held here.

The series climaxed a season for the Bears such as Newarkers had not seen since the team topped the International league 19 long years ago.

Partly because of the long interim since the last pennant came to this city, a record crowd was expected for the start at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Advance sale of tickets was heavy and it was indicated a sell-out crowd of 20,000 would attend.

Case No. 11682.

2,400 FANS WATCH VANGLER LOSE HARD BATTLE TO JACKSON

Bulldog Wins Two Out of Three Falls; Ashby is Defeated.

The World war was a tame affair compared with last night's battles on the weekly Steam Shovel gym wrestling card. At least that was the concensus of some 2,400 fans who crowded the auditorium for some high class sharp shooting in the form of kicking, biting and slugging.

Bulldog Jackson, who has been barred from Columbus mat circles, made it entirely clear that he has this Sammy Vangler of Parkersburg, W. Va., backed off Marion's map as the roughest and toughest matman ever to show here.

He chalked up his second straight victory over the Jewish tough boy and there is talk of matching the Alaskan with another of Vangler's conquerors, Robin Reed. No date has been set for the match.

The Bulldog's victory was quite decisive although he lost one fall of the match. Jackson took the first fall in 21 minute with his famous hammer-lock and Vangler came back to take the second with a body slam in 10 minutes. Countering a hook scissors with a back drop, Bulldog settled the question of who's who in six and a half minutes.

The match had the aspects of a comic opera and the fans were kept in a constant uproar. It was necessary for police to join the referee in stopping the battle after the last fall. Vangler's A-1 "footwork" was the feature of the match. He kicked Jackson all over the ropes and seemed certain of winning until Jackson really started wrestling.

It was an all star rough card. Spike Ashby, the Chicago firecracker, was back again. This time he took on Bobby Novack in the semi-final. Novack won the bout by taking the only fall, scored with his well-known hook scissors. The remainder of the time Ashby literally knocked the socks off the victor.

Joe Snyder and Ernie Nolan went to a draw in the preliminary. Nolan, who looked pretty good when he first appeared here a couple a months ago, is apparently attempting to show something he doesn't possess and as a result of his grandstanding is becoming more or less of a pain to Marion fans. His wrestling tactics and amateurish attempts at showmanship should not be tolerated. To a majority of the fans Nolan has appeared here too often.

SCHMELING CRUSHES WALKER IN EIGHTH; AWAITS TITLE BOUT

Mickey Goes Back to Middleweight Division After Manager Stops Fight.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 27—The fight game gladly bundled up its outdoor season paraphernalia today, left the heavyweight question for Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey to dispute next summer, and settled down to a discussion of one of the most stirring and unusual heavyweight battles of modern history.

Back to the middleweight division by his own consent, went Mickey Walker, still claiming championship there, as game a little fellow as ever stepped out of his class to take crushing defeat manfully until there was not another breath of resistance left in him.

For Max Schmeling, conqueror of the doughty little Irishman in eight rounds in the 1932 closing show at the Madison Square Garden bowl, there was nothing left this year but a jaunt back to Germany, a rest for a few months, and then return to resume his feud with Sharkey.

For a while last night it seemed Walker was to cap a glamorous career with a stunning upset victory, and win the right to challenge Sharkey in Schmeling's place.

But in the eighth round a right uppercut closed Mickey's left eye, blinded him. The crushing power in Schmeling's fists floored him for counts of six and nine, left him rubber-legged, bleeding, helpless when the bell rang.

Without waiting for Referee Jack Denning's interference, Jack Kearns, Walker's manager, leaped into the ring and refused to let Mickey go further.

There was nothing for Referee Jack Denning to do but award the decision to Schmeling on a technical knockout.

Although the bout actually ended in the minute rest between the eighth and ninth rounds, it will go down in ring history as a technical knockout for Schmeling in the eighth.
